EXHIBIT INFORMATION

“HIDDEN IN PLAIN SIGHT”

The "Hidden in Plain Sight" program offers adults an insight into what youth may be hiding in their rooms. This interactive exhibit focuses on alcohol and tobacco use, current trends in the abuse of other drugs such as cannabis, synthetic and "designer" drugs, opiates, cocaine, amphetamine-type stimulants, hallucinogens, and prescription drugs. Participants will learn about different types of paraphernalia available for the use, processing and concealment of illicit drugs.

During this program which is geared for parents, guardians and other concerned adults, participants are given a pre-determined amount of time to inspect a mock-up of a typical teenager's bedroom. During the inspection, attendees are asked to list any items they believe to be drug-related. Following the inspection, a presenter discloses the different articles and their significance.

After completing the program, participants will know:

- indicators of drug abuse found in music, art and the youth sub-culture
- common methods of concealment
- paraphernalia used in the processing and use of illicit drugs
- how youth's attitudes are influenced by the entertainment industry and the Internet
- law enforcement's efforts and experiences in combating alcohol and drug abuse
- available resources for those seeking additional help and information

The use of program materials is provided free of charge to groups within Clayton County. Donations are welcome and appreciated.

For programs outside of Clayton County, please see reverse side.

"Hidden In Plain Sight" can be presented in one of two ways.

Open House – After the bedroom is set up, attendees can walk through the exhibit with a guide who points out items of interest inside the room. Other informational and display materials can be positioned outside the exhibit for review and inspection.

Presentation – Small groups are allowed a few minutes each to inspect the room. After about 30 minutes have elapsed, a member of law enforcement (or other knowledgeable person) makes a presentation to the entire group. A question and answer period may follow. 5C has found partnering with other groups to provide educational facts or information will help pass the time as people wait for the presentation to begin, or while standing in line to enter the exhibit. Stationing volunteers around the area to explain the process and to offer assistance was found to be helpful. Providing activities for youth will allow adults in attendance to focus on the message being presented.

Program guidelines:

1. Groups are allowed to reserve program materials for no more than three days. If a longer period is desired, please contact 5C to negotiate a timeframe.
2. Set up takes approximately two hours. Expect at least an hour for tear down.
